$1 laser printing service

PARAGON Computers has introduced a do-it-yourself laser printing service.

IBM, Macintosh, Atari and Amiga computer owners can now get a laser print of any document for $1 a page.

There is even a modem communication available so clients can send the material to the printer via telephone and get the printed product couriered back from Paragon's East Perth office.

The company is also offering a page make-up service, with desk top publishing programs for all four systems.

It also has a scanner and a graphics tablet teamed with the system.

The scanner allows the digitising of pictures for inclusion in the publication and the tablets for free-hand drawing or diagram tracing.
